“ Debbie, I can't even imagine what you are going through or about to go through. I know that you loved your husband very much and to be without him has to be so devastating to you right now. I know that God knows what you are going through and will go through in the days to come. There really aren't any words that could possibly get you through this, but some words are everlasting and you will remember them. May God continue to look after you in your time of comfort. May God Bless you to the fullest. May God bring you peace and Joy again. The memories are what you have to carry to you through and they are good memories. I ran across some pictures of Chubby and that bright smile is such a big one, an everlasting one. Know that I do not know what you are going through or how you are handling it, but God is able to give you that comfort of peace that you need right now. I can only imagine if it were my husband that I have lost. Take care and God forever Bless you and the family to endure your loss.
