

Dr. Philip Anthony Snow

July 19, 1951 - December 18, 2025

Dr. Philip Anthony Snow, 74, of Henderson, Maryland, passed away peacefully on December 18, 2025, at Compass Regional Hospice.

Born on July 19, 1951, in Baltimore, Maryland, Philip was the son of the late Charles and Margaret Snow. He was a proud graduate of North Caroline High School, where his curiosity and discipline set the foundation for a lifelong pursuit of learning. Following high school, Philip was recruited into the Intelligence Service Community and selected for the Phoenix Program, where he specialized in training and instruction.

Philip was deeply committed to education. Over the course of his life, he earned multiple academic degrees, culminating in a Doctorate in Soil Science from the University of Maryland. His passion for science extended far beyond formal education; he was endlessly fascinated by how the world worked, how chemicals mixed, how systems interacted, and the sense of wonder that emerged when everything came together. Science was not just his profession, but his greatest passion.

Outside of his academic and professional life, Philip found joy in the outdoors and in working the land. He especially enjoyed surf fishing, hunting, and farming, and took great pleasure in tending the land, which remained one of his favorite pastimes. He was an avid attendee of farm auctions, where he delighted in history, tools, and stories tied to agricultural life. Phillip also cherished time spent eating crabs with friends, sharing conversation, laughter, and lasting memories.

In addition to his parents, Philip was preceded in death by his sister, Joan Lindlof, and his brother, Martin Snow.

Philip is survived by his lifelong partner, Brenda Zevgolis of Virginia; his nephew, James Lindlof (Susan); his niece, Kristen Cardozo (Carlos). He also leaves behind many great-nieces and great-nephews who will carry forward his memory and legacy.

“ The world has lost another wonderful soul. Enjoyed our chats of places he'd been and things he'd done and seen. He had a wealth of information that he gladly shared. Loved getting kids into hunting and helping them succeed. You will be missed but thought of often. God bless.

Our entire family enjoyed time spent with Phil; he was a tease and a jokester. He and my husband were friends for about fifty years. He and Charles met at the University of Maryland; they enjoyed hunting and fishing. Our grandson, Steven admired Phil and became good friends with him.

Phil fought the fight and had the will to live. May he rest in peace.
